"Foreign Devil". This cry invariably greets the darling European who attempts to explore the lower quarters of Chinese towns. The natives hate the foreigners and it is only necessary to refuse their invitation to purchase some useless article, to provoke a storm of vituperation and abuse. The epithet "Foreign Devil" is derived from the fact of wearing no pigtail, by means of which the Chinese hope to be dragged into Heaven!

My dear Ben,
 I thanks so much for letter; shows so everything getting on.
 At time it looks out for the cutskin like now if you want to press away, also dead's mercury! a little green flower, a lot of it grows round the pulley.
 Then head is ground very close by the same place. Also flowers this month. Dogs mercury after when
